Turin, October 14. N. S.

THE Enemy, ſince the Arrival of the Marquis de Dreux with Orders to put off the Siege of this Place, have been buſyed with ſending away their Artillery and Ammunition. The 9th Inſtant we had Advice, That Orders were given in their Camp for the detaching of 4 Battalions more towards Suſe, and 14 Battalions, with 15 Squadrons, to reinforce the Duke of Vendoſme; and if we may judge by the Motions of the Enemy's Troops, and by their marching ſome towards Suſe, and others towards Chivas, the Duke de la Feuillade intends forthwith to ſeparate his Army. The Enemy pulled up and burnt the Paliſadoes which they had planted round the ſeveral Redoubts that defended their Line along the Doria, from Luſingo to the Old Park. The 10th the Duke de la Feuillade decamped from before this City, and marched with his Army to Colegno, where he paſſed the Doria. The Troops which he had left to bring up his Rear ſet fire to their Camp, and then retired. In the afternoon our Duke viewed the Enemy's Camp, with the Lines of Circumvallation and Contravallation which they had begun on this ſide the Doria; and the next day his Royal Highneſs ordered that about 300 Pioneers ſhould be employed in levelling thoſe Lines. His Royal Highneſs being informed, that the Enemy deſigned to return to Aſti, and had already ſent 500 Granadiers that way, who had paſſed the Po at Chivas, he ordered that a Regiment of Foot, 6 Companies of Imperial Granadiers, and 1200 diſmounted German Troopers, all Veteran Soldiers, under the Command of General Daun, ſhould be detached from hence to reinforce that Gariſon. Yeſterday in the afternoon the Duke de la Feuillade marched to the Venerie; and we are told, that he continues his March this day towards Settean and Brandis.

From Prince Eugene's Camp at Fontanella, October 22. On the 16th Inſtant, our Army being then at Mondodena, a Detachment of the Duke of Vendoſme's Army attacked a Body of 500 Men that was poſted on the other ſide the Serio, to guard our Bridge over that River, who thereupon retired to our Camp; and both Armies cannonaded each other, the River being between them. The 17th we marched to Pianengo, near Crema, the Enemy marching the ſame way on the other ſide the Serio. The 20th, in the night, we paſſed that River at Montontiano, without any Oppoſition from the Enemy, tho' they had advanced that way for that purpoſe; but they had not Intelligence of it ſoon enough to prevent us; after which we came to this Camp. The Enemy are advanced towards Soncino, where we have a Gariſon, which is ordered to retire upon their Approach, and to rejoin us.

Vienna, October 24. The 17th Inſtant a Courier arrived here from the Imperial Army in Hungary, with a Journal of their March from the 16th of the laſt Month, when they paſſed the Danube at Peſt, to the time of their croſſing the Tibiſcus. The Generals had at firſt deſigned to attack the Town of Zolnock; but finding it impracticable, for want of Bridges, they marched along the Tibiſcus by Czonogrod down to Segedin, where the Army paſſed that River the 9th and 10th Inſtant over a Bridge of Boats brought thither for that purpoſe from Peter-Waradin. The 11th they advanced as far as Varaſhel, from whence they intended to proceed towards Great-Waradin, in order to relieve that Place, which is beſieged by a Body of Malecontents. The Imperial Army met with no Accident on their March, except that going from Koron the 25th paſt, their Left Wing was attacked by a Body of Huſſars belonging to the Malecontents, who were ſoon obliged to retire; and the 28th in the night the Malecontents beat up General Glockelsberg's Quarters near Ketskemet; but after an hour's Diſpute were likewiſe repulſed with Loſs. Count Thun, Archbiſhop of Saltzbourg, being grown blind with Age, the Chapter proceeded to the Choice of a Coadjutor. The Election came on the 19th Inſtant, and Count Harrach, Biſhop of Vienna, Son to the late Emperor's Firſt Miniſter of State, was choſen unanimouſly. That day the two Hungarian Deputies, Viſa and Occolicciani came hither with a Paſs for Count Wratiſlaw, who is to go as Commiſſioner from the Emperor with the Mediators to Tyrnau, where Count Berzeni and 5 other Deputies are to meet them the 27th Inſtant, in order to treat of a Ceſſation of Arms, and to ſet on foot a Negotiation for the accommodating of the Troubles in Hungary.

From the Imperial Camp near Haguenau, October 31. The 23d Inſtant Prince Lewis detached Colonel Stein with 600 Men to take Poſt in a little Iſland of the Rhine near Fort Louis, which will greatly annoy that Gariſon, and hinder any Supplies of Proviſions or other Neceſſaries from going into the Place. The 28th we marched from Wierſheimb, and came to this Camp, lying between Haguenau and Plaffenhoven. The Palatine Forces and other Troops are marched towards Hombourg, in order to form the Siege of that Place. Our General went from hence this day towards Francfort, to confer with his Grace the Duke of Marlborough. The Repartition of the Winter Quarters for our Troops is ſettled; 15000 Foot and 5000 Horſe will be poſted towards Haguenau and Druſenheim, and the reſt of the Forces will be ſo diſpoſed, that they may be drawn together in a very ſhort time upon any ſudden Occaſion.

Francfort, Nov. 1. The Emperor having thought it abſolutely neceſſary, for the better carrying on of the War the next Campaign, to concert Meaſures with the Duke of Marlborough; and having by Letters earneſtly preſſed him to come to Vienna, his Grace accordingly left the Army in Brabant the 26th paſt, and came the 28th at night to Duſſeldorp, where he was complimented in the Name of the Elector Palatine by Colonel du Socket, who, with other Officers of his Electoral Highneſs's Court, was appointed to attend his Grace in his Journey through the Elector's Territories. The 29th the Elector met his Grace on the Road, about two Leagues from his Reſidence at Bernsberg, and entertained him very magnificently under ſeveral Tents which had been pitched there for that purpoſe. After Dinner his Grace continued his Journey, and the 30th at night was attended at Ditkerken by the Baron of Elſt, Great Dean of the Chapter of Triers, and the Baron of Haguen, Great Chamberlain to that Elector, who had ſent them to compliment his Grace upon his paſſing through his Country. The 31ſt in the evening his Grace came to Francfort, and was ſaluted at his Entrance into this City with a treble Diſcharge of our Artillery; and when he alighted out of his Coach, was complimented by the Magiſtrates. His Grace reſted here this day, and with his Retinue was entertained at Dinner by his Grace the Duke of Shrewsbury. His Grace intended to have gone to morrow to Heydelberg, to confer with Prince Lewis; but was prevented by the coming of a Gentleman from his Highneſs with a Compliment to his Grace, and to acquaint him, that he would be here this night to wait upon him, and intended to return towards the Army to morrow morning at break of day; and his Grace will proceed from hence on his Journey to Vienna.
